Coast Guns To Safeguard Trips Over War Routes

By GEORGE HAMILTON
LONDON, May 3.—Five thousand children will shortly sail from Bilbao under the shelter of British guns. They will be the first contingent in a great movement of Bilbao's civil population to France.

British and French merchant ships in the neighborhood will co-operate in evacuating civilians. It was reported today as the Spanish insurgents neared Bilbao.

Coast guns will safeguard the passage of the Bilbao refugees through territorial waters. On the high seas British warships will ensure their protection.

No hostages will be included among the refugees. British control at Bilbao will see no political problems shown.

HUMANITARIAN

Great Britain is determined to go ahead with the evacuation scheme, despite the receipt of a demand from the Government of France, the insurgent leader.

The British decision to assist in the evacuation of civilians was conveyed to France, it was stated, as the result of taking air action there was no thought France might object.

However, the insurgent general strongly objected. His main grievance was that the evacuation of civilians would be a blow to the morale of the Spanish people.

It is inadvisable that the head of a Spanish province receive a demand for the evacuation of civilians, the insurgent leader said.

Another $25,000 will be spent on the telephone department, while the engineering department will receive $25,000, the street lighting, $45,000, and the electric light department, $45,000.

HEAVILY FREED: FIGHTING DAY FOOT LOCKER OFF

ST. WOLFGANG, Austria, May 3.—The Duke of Windsor bade this Austrian beauty spot goodbye today and hastened toward France, where he awaits Mrs. Wallis Simpson, whose divorce decree became final this morning.

Just before noon the telephone rang in the remodelled pension, Appenbach, where the former King Edward VIII has spent the last few weeks. The Duke was putting on his mountain climbing boots. He went to the telephone: learned Mrs. Simpson had been finally divorced from Ernest Aldrich Simpson in London.

Immediately he called the Duke's secretary, Mr. T. J. G. Jones, near the station. There was no disguising his elation. Edward's critics, however, calculated the house into action. Bags were piled into the Duke's car in time for him to catch the 10:40 express from Salzburg.

At noon, the Duke announced he was leaving at once for Tours, near the station. There was no disguising his elation. Edward's critics, however, calculated the house into action. Bags were piled into the Duke's car in time for him to catch the 10:40 express from Salzburg.

LIGHT SWITCH FOILS THUGS IN THEFT TRY

Yegmen Scared Awa y When Store Owners Probe Power Failure

Skilled and daring yegmen were foiled in an attempt to carry off a safe containing cash and cheques from the premises of the National System of Banks, Limited, at 10121 Jasper avenue, shortly before 11 p.m. Saturday.

They pulled the wrong switch when they attempted to put out the light over the safe. Instead, plunged three adjoining stores into darkness and brought infuriated neighbors to the scene to find out the cause of the break in the light circuit.

LEAD

be one of an unusual and exciting finish. With the inclusion of E. W. and E. C. Parker the RCMP side for this season presents a formidable front and may be expected to be amongst the leaders at the end of the season.

Thomson took first lease of the wicket, but with the exception of Credit the Fuzelier batsmen fared badly.

After the interval the Parkers opened for the Police. E. C. giving a fine exhibition of batmanship for his E. against the keen attack of Croft and Windsor. With the score steadily increasing it looked any odds on a win for the Police.

the police, the score standing 13 to 6 when Lane was dismissed. Harrison made a valiant effort to get the required runs, with the aid of a bye he took the score to the Fusiliers total and then got run out. Two weeks etc to fail and one run to win the same a seemingly hopeless proposition for the Fusiliers, but they prove equal to it. Allen stumped and Giff tries making a smart catch to take Crouch, left the game tied.

Looking them Over

By Jack Kelly
What It Takes
Etta Stays Here
Outdoors Filled

THERE are mighty few amateur athletes who have not done some day-dreaming in which they fondly considered what they would do if their talent were rewarded with a nice big pay contract in four or five years. The great majority of athletes have always figured that to get such a contract they had to be absolute tops in their line, but many that are unquestioned champs have never even seen a pay contract and they still addily wondering why promoters don't make a rush for them.

Eleanor Holm Barrett supplies the answer for these perplexed athletes. She holds an impressive list of backstroke records, but this style of swimming has very little box office attraction. It is not nearly as thrilling as fancy diving or spring swimming. Yet reports are that she will make close to $200,000 in her first year as professional.

The answer is Esmerton takes the sort of picture that most people look twice at, and she turned pro, when she was the centre of an international wave of publicity that had to do with champagne, old money amateur officials and the Olympic games. If she had waited until now to dive into the pro, World she would be lucky to make $20 a week.

One sample of Esmerton's sensational clean-up is that she will be paid $30,000 for starring in a water carnival at the end of the Great Lakes Exposition in Cleveland this summer. For contrast, consider the case of Marshall Wayne, who won the 1936 Olympic platform diving championship. His act is much more spectacular than Esmerton's, yet he turned pro after returning from the Olympics and has not yet made $500 altogether. Tom Sellers does the world's highest dive, 120 feet, for only $35 a week. Working somewhere through the States just now is Sam Howard, who personifies from one high spring board to another from that into a tank without stopping. His pay is not more than $40 a week.

All of which would pretty well indicate that pro swimming and diving today are far from being his money jobs.

Vancouver Wants Etta

BASKETBALL circles in Vancouver are reported to be all agog over a rumor that Etta Dunn of the Edmonton Grads will be playing there next season. In fact, officials of the Spencers are said to be making camp there for her services.

However, the coast guards can take it easy. Somebody has been kidding them. Coach Percy Page of the Grads is authority for the assurance that there is nothing at all in the report.

Calgary Getting Itch

RECALL revival of professional boxing here in Edmonton is turning Calgary's thoughts to rings and fisticuffs. The Calgary Alberts recently pointed out that the fans were ready and anxious for good fighting again, but regretted that the city had no capable promoters. Calgary officials are in haste to build an ideal building in the Pavilion for boxing, something that is a tremendous handicap here. A clean-cut promoter with enough financial backing to carry him through the early stages could do right well in the fistic business in Cow Town.

Edmonton Goes Outdoors

OVER the weekend, Edmonton's wet newspapers went outdoors en masse. Every golf course was filled to capacity, tennis courts everywhere echoed with the cup-dup of driven balls, streets and roads were filled with regiments of bikes, baseball and softball were underway everywhere, and those weren't fortunate enough to dodge the martial chain gang were doing their stuff on gardens and flower beds with spades and rakes.

But it was the valley of the Saskatchewan river from the high level bridge to the low level of the river, that really drew the crowds. You couldn't have a crack anywhere along the wooded banks without danger of hitting a hunking party. The escape clubs were also out at full strength. Throughout Sunday there were half a dozen camps in sight everywhere along the river from Grant River to far west of White Mud Creek. Wild Mud itself drew a record crowd that made it almost impossible to find space to park a car.

Humperville Arrives For Title Go With McSpornan

Fans Will See A Real
Fighter Says
Manager

Accompanied by his manager, A. T. Macdonald, Smokey Humperville arrived in Edmonton on Sunday afternoon for his 16-round fight with Eddie McSpornan in the Memorial Hall here Tuesday night for the western Canadian middleweight championship.

"You can rely on Jack Smokey seems to be in top condition. He has a nice set of fighting muscles and hands that show they have been honed in the early light of having landed a lot of powerful punches."

Macdonald was confident, but not too optimistic. "I don't think I can tell you how good McSpornan is, but I can tell you how good Humperville is. He is a real fighter and he will show it in the ring."

GYPSY COLOR TO BE MISSED ON DERBY DAY

Pictureque Caravans Are Banned From Epsom
Downs Track

By NORMAN SMITH
LONDON, May 3.—Gypsies and their gipsy-like caravans have long been a feature of the Epsom Downs track, but this year and from now on they must do their gipsying somewhere else.

Public opinion has cracked down on this as a nuisance—at least that section of opinion that dislikes "litter" around a racecourse, even if it is picturesque litter.

A law has been passed, and in this country the law is the law even though it runs in the face of a romantic tradition. But the gypsies are not going out bedraggled—normally, they may for a few days have been in the press upon their going.

Lady Stoll Grant, for instance, has a kindly feeling for gypsies and follows up previous years in their behalf with a plea to the Epsom "conservators" to let the gypsies remain on Derby week. She described the Epsom course as "famous without the traditional eye-crimps of gypsies."

This plea was supported by Lady Legge, who lives in Epsom Lane and wrote to the Times that she had been "hampered to see gypsies driven out of their campments by the fact that they had no shelter, nor any of the amenities of life."

At least, she asked, they should be given a recognized camping place.

Home runs get the cheers, but there's nothing like a good win in bringing the crowd to the feet. The scene below shows both teams gathered in the second base. Both newspapers were banished and the game went on, Pittsburgh winning 4-3.
